What are the benefits of Just-in-Time Learning

- It improves productivity
- It accelerates the pace of the learning process
- It improves learner access to knowledge
- It creates more engaged employees
- It optimizes knowledge retention

What do I need to adopt Just-in-Time Learning?

- Cultivate a culture of learning
- Use responsive technology
- Short, yet highly relevant content
- Content focused on work-related competencies
- A system that categorizes and organizes courses efficiently

8 Keys to Just-in-Time Learning Success

- Solve one problem at a time
- Don't lose sight of purpose
- Content must be bite-sized
- Use content tagging capabilities
- Encourage users to create content
- Express the benefits of your learning solution to learners
- Don't eliminate formal learning
- Measure results, claim successes

How to Apply Just-in-Time Learning

- Training material must be easy to absorb
- Give learners an easy way to access SMEs
- Understand what your learners need
- Develop multiplatform-friendly content (yes, that means mobile)
- Incorporate real world online training opportunities

What kind of content is best for just-in-time learning?

- Decision-making branch scenarios
- Engaging infographics
- Video demos
- Real-world examples/case studies
- Self-assessments
- Bite-sized gamification

And now for a use case...

Say 'Hello' to Kevin, The Antenna Technician

This isn't in the Manual! (But Kevin knows how to fix it)

Don't forget about mobile (and Gen Z)

64% - learners that access training content on mobile

43% – learners that improve productivity compared to non-mobile users

Mobile users complete course materials 45% faster than desktop users

Connecting With Gen Z Means...

- Develop a video content library
- Establish a collaborative learning culture backed by technology
- Always show them why what they're learning is important
- Incorporate self-directed learning and critical thinking
- All above strategies are developed with mobile delivery at top of mind
